Interwork is a specialist employment service provider that is committed to assisting its clients to realise their full potential.

With more than 19 years of experience, Interwork's goal is to help people that require extra support find employment.

Interwork focuses on what people can achieve and what a person's individual talents are to help get the job that's right for them.

Interwork provides assistance to prepare people with a disability, or who are disadvantaged, for a career path that is suitable, achievable and sustainable.

Whyalla Interwork Employment Coordinator Jakkī Savaidis knows that being active in the community and partnering with employers is the right thing to do to help engage jobseekers into finding the right job.

"We are committed to finding work for those seeking to find a job," Ms Savaidis said.

"Our Team works with local employers and find people for vacancies.

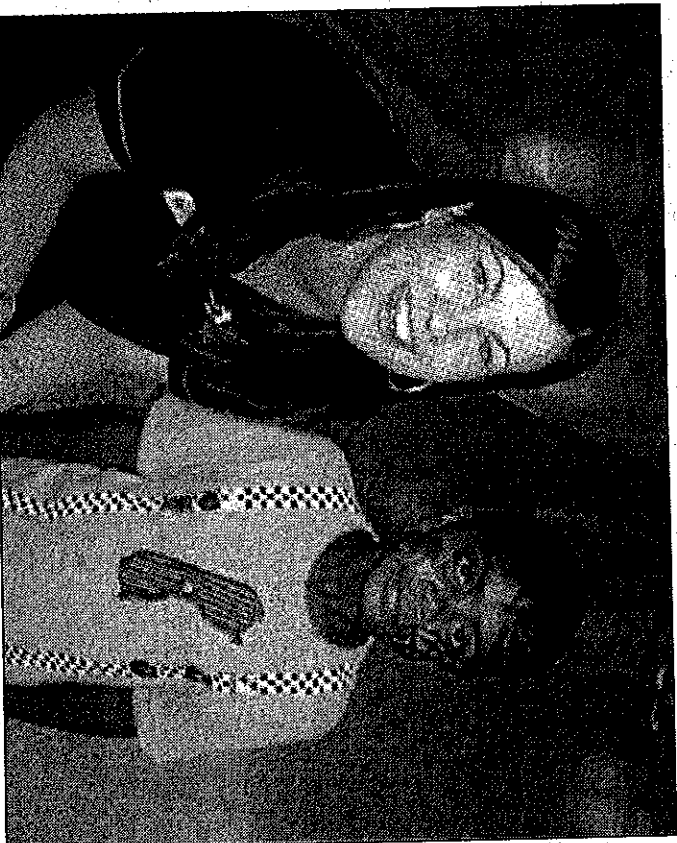

"We are determined to partner with job seekers and employers to achieve their goals."

Interwork is open to accept direct registrations.

For more information on how you can access Interwork's free services contact the office at 86-49 4035.
